

I love my cat. She's a grey tabby with dark striped fur. The stripes over her eyes look like a crown. That's why I named her Kingsley.

Since I live in the city, Kingsley has to stay indoors. But sometimes I think she pretends that she lives in the forests, jungles or the grassy plains of the world.

At night, she runs up and down the hallway, like a mother lion hunting in the grassy plains.

Hidden behind the plants, she acts like a cheetah hiding in the tall grass.
